

Foreword

This student handbook contains the pertinent rules and regulations, including selected service and student-life information that will serve as a primary source of guidance and reference for all students of Pamantasan Sample University.

The rules, regulations and policies contained herein apply to all bona fide students of the University who, upon admission and enrollment, agree to observe the standards and responsibilities established for the academic community.

Besides this handbook, students are expected to consult official announcements, notices, memoranda, faculty instructions, and other authorized University communications. Students are therefore responsible for keeping themselves informed of policies and announcements issued by the Administration, faculty members, and recognized student organizations.

Messages

Pamantasan Sample University is committed to providing an environment conducive to learning, personal development, responsible citizenship, and academic excellence. This handbook is intended to guide students throughout their stay in the University.

Students should recognize that membership in an academic community provides rights and privileges, but also entails responsibilities. Understanding and observing the provisions of this handbook contribute to a safe, orderly, and productive campus environment.

University President

Messages

The revised Student Handbook provides students with a practical reference on academic requirements, campus services, student conduct, and University procedures. It is intended to promote student welfare and development while strengthening the shared responsibilities of students and University personnel.

Compliance with the provisions contained herein helps create a respectful learning environment and supports the University's commitment to producing competent, responsible, and socially aware graduates.

PROF. ANDREW R. DELA CRUZ (Sgd.)
Dean, Office of Student Affairs and Services

Student Policies and Regulations

The following provisions constitute selected sample policies for academic and student-life administration. Each policy is presented in the traditional section format used in this handbook.

I. Student Identification Card

The University requires every enrolled student to possess and properly use an official Student Identification Card. The identification card serves as proof of enrollment and shall be presented when requested by authorized University personnel.

Section 1.1. Possession and Use

Every student shall carry the official Student Identification Card while inside the University premises. The ID shall be visibly worn or readily presented when required.

Section 1.2. Campus Entry

Students entering the University premises may be required to present their Student Identification Card to security personnel. Students who cannot present their ID may be subject to identity verification before entry is permitted.

Section 1.3. Lost or Misplaced ID

A student who loses or misplaces the Student Identification Card shall immediately report the matter to the Office of Student Affairs and Services (OSAS). A temporary gate pass may be issued while the replacement is being processed.

Section 1.4. Misuse of Identification Card

Lending, borrowing, altering, or using another student's identification card for the purpose of misrepresenting identity is prohibited and may be referred for disciplinary action.

II. Attendance and Punctuality

Regular and punctual attendance in scheduled classes is required of all students. Attendance shall be checked beginning on the first day of classes and shall form part of the student's academic responsibilities.

Section 2.1. Regular Attendance

Students are expected to attend all scheduled classes, laboratory sessions, examinations, and other academic activities required by the course.

Section 2.2. Tardiness

A student who arrives after fifteen (15) minutes from the scheduled beginning of the class may be recorded as late. Three (3) instances of tardiness shall be recorded as one absence.

Section 2.3. Excused Absence

A student who is unable to attend class because of illness or another unavoidable circumstance shall secure appropriate written documentation and present it to the instructor within the period prescribed by the University.

Section 2.4. Excessive Absence

When the accumulated number of hours lost through absence reaches twenty percent (20%) of the scheduled hours in a subject, the student may be dropped from the subject, subject to applicable University rules and due process.

III. College Library

The College Library is an educational repository that supports instruction, research, and independent learning. Students are expected to observe proper conduct and take responsibility for all library materials entrusted to them.

Section 3.1. General Conduct

Silence shall be observed inside the library. Loud conversations, unnecessary noise, sleeping, and activities that disturb other library users are not allowed.

Section 3.2. Food and Cleanliness

Eating and drinking are prohibited in designated reading areas. Students shall keep tables, chairs, shelves, and other library facilities clean and orderly.

Section 3.3. Borrowing of Materials

Students shall present a valid Student Identification Card or library card when borrowing materials. Borrowed materials shall be returned personally to the library staff on or before the assigned due date.

Section 3.4. Lost or Damaged Materials

A lost or damaged book or other library material shall be reported immediately to the librarian. The student may be required to replace the material or comply with the applicable library procedure.

IV. Acceptable Use of University Network and Computer Facilities

University network services, computer laboratories, and institution-provided devices are made available primarily to support teaching, learning, research, and authorized administrative activities. Students shall use these resources responsibly.

Section 4.1. Authorized Use

Students may use University computer facilities and network services for legitimate academic, research, communication, and other authorized activities.

Section 4.2. Prohibited Activities

Students shall not intentionally disrupt network operations, bypass security controls, access another person's account without permission, or interfere with the availability of University systems.

Section 4.3. Software Installation

Unauthorized installation of software, modification of system configurations, or introduction of programs that may compromise the security or performance of University computers is prohibited.

Section 4.4. Account and Device Responsibility

Students shall protect their account credentials, log out after using shared computers, and immediately report suspected unauthorized access or security incidents to the appropriate office.

V. Student Conduct and Respectful Communication

The University promotes a safe, orderly, and respectful learning environment. Every student is expected to observe proper conduct and respect the rights, dignity, and property of members of the University community.

Section 5.1. Respectful Conduct

Students shall treat fellow students, faculty members, non-teaching personnel, visitors, and other members of the University community with courtesy and respect.

Section 5.2. Harassment and Threats

Threatening, intimidating, humiliating, or harassing another person is prohibited. The prohibition applies to conduct occurring on campus and to University-related digital communication channels.

Section 5.3. Disruptive Behavior

Students shall not engage in conduct that substantially disrupts classes, University services, official activities, or the orderly operation of the campus.

Section 5.4. Reporting of Violations

A complaint concerning an alleged violation may be submitted in writing to the appropriate University office. Reported matters shall be handled in accordance with applicable procedures.

Administrative Guidance

Violations of the provisions in this sample handbook may be referred to the appropriate University office for verification, documentation, and appropriate action. Where a disciplinary matter is involved, the student shall be informed of the allegation and shall be given the opportunity to respond in accordance with applicable University procedures.

The provisions of this sample handbook are fictional and are prepared exclusively for testing the PLAWMINARY handbook ingestion, policy extraction, page tracking, and scenario-search features. They do not constitute official rules of any real educational institution.
